

1. What was / has been your occupation before entering politics?

I practice the profession of interior designer and I'm a substitute in a dozen schools of the Commission scolaire des Laurentides.

2. Do you live in the riding and, if so, how long has it been your home?

I live in my riding (Morin-Heights), since 2004.

3. What has been your main involvement with your community outside of work (volunteer activities, etc.)?

I have been involved in citizen politics.

4. In your life what event, or book, or speech, or song or even TV show has made the biggest impression on you and your political thinking? Why?

Becoming a mother. Because becoming responsible for a child is managing the day-to-day development of a human being. I work to provide a bright future for generations to come.

5. What previous politician (alive or dead, but not currently in parliament) is a role model for you?

Pauline Marois is a role model for me. She closed down Quebec's only nuclear reactor, she ended asbestos production in Quebec, she created child care centres. She became Quebec's first woman Premier.

6. What policy in your party's platform do you think matters most to the people in your riding?

Environmental concerns are very important. Also, one of the policies that matters the most for people of my riding especially for seniors concerns is about the security of their retirement pension. The Green Party of Canada plan for an Arrangement Act to establish the preeminence of pensioners and the pension plan in the creditor hierarchy during company insolvency proceedings.

7. Recent polls suggest many Canadians are disillusioned with politics. If elected, what would you do to address those concerns?

I understand their disillusionment. Personally, my philosophy is to do my best every day. It's the same thing in politics, for me.
